

Daily Journal

May 1, 2006 - Mon / 5:40 pm

Right now, my hair is weightless, greasy and my scalp has a lot of build up. My hair in general is dry, nappy and fried. My ends are all spilt and crazy and it feels nappy only in the center inside my head. I washed my hair 2x with both shampoo & conditioner, then I used my wild growth oil. My hair was easily manageable and had shininess.

May 8, 2006 - Mon / 1:36 pm

It's been a good week now, that I've been using wild hair growth oil. I use it three times a week. My hair feels fuller and I'm getting more nappy hair, but that's a good thing because I got a perm about two months ago. When your hair gets nappy, that's a sign that new growth is coming in.

May 29, 2006

I got a touch up on the 12th of this month and I started using wild growth hair oil on the first. After the touchup, I saw a big improvement. Even though my hair had gotten longer, my aunt had cut all of my ends off, split ends. It will grow back though, thanks to wild growth.

August 17, 2006 (Thur) 11:00 am

I was told that I needed a perm every seven weeks. When my aunt did my hair the past Monday, she told me that it didn't look like I needed a perm every seven weeks. That I'm good for 1 every three months. She said my hair has grown from the last time. I'm going to cut my hair again, face length, right now it's ~~past~~ past my neck. I have to cut it because my hair has always been uneven. So I am going to let it get cut by the salon and then finish my bottle of wild growth off. can you believe that I still have some left! it's been four months.

* I gave you a before and after picture.

The picture on top / wearing blue hood is before my birthday ~~this~~ year, I just had a touchup. Started using wild hair growth in may. the picture under is After / me with brother on his birthday. I just had an wash and set, in August.